

Halper-Hendrix Experiment

Halper-Hendrix Experiment, founded by László Halper in 2013, performs jazz adaptations of Jimi Hendrix's compositions. The band is based on Halper's former group Band of Gypsies Reincarnation that published its first CD in 2010 also featuring the world-famous Randy Brecker on trumpet.

In 2012, BoGR gave a monumental and successful concert in commemoration of Jimi Hendrix's 70th birthday at the Palace of Arts of Budapest (MÜPA) featuring one of the world's most renowned rhythm sections: Steve Gadd on drums and Eddie Gomez on double bass. Recordings of the concert were published on CD called 'Electric Angelland' on Jimi Hendrix's birthday in 2013.

In 2017, the band celebrated Jimi Hendrix' 75th birthday supplemented with legendary musicians of the Hungarian music scene like Gyula Babos, Béla Szakcsi Lakatos, Imre Kőszegi, Tibor Tátrai, János Solti and Ádám Török.

As of now, László Halper's band offers 4 different line-ups as follows:

Quartet: This is the smallest setup of the band with László Halper (guitar), Gábor Kollmann (saxophone), Zsolt Kosztyu (bass) and László Hajas (drums).

Quintet: Classic sound being made more colourful by István Fekete's trumpet playing.

Sextet: In sextet line-up the band's brass section is completed with Ákos Csejtey on tenor saxophone. This setup often performs concerts featuring singers of high renown Ric Toldon (USA) and Gisele Jackson (USA).

World Music: The band's most recent line-up Halper-Hendrix World opens up a new prospect for the band's sounding. In this setup the basic rhythm section is completed with the world-famous cimbalom artist Kálmán Balogh and the internationally renowned artist Szokolay 'Dongó' Balázs playing different folk instruments – shepherd's flute, bagpipe, long flute – who both give a unique character to the band's soundscape.
